3rd March 2017

Dear Parent/Guardian,

We are pleased to inform you about an exclusive competition being held by author Richard Dodd, following his visit to the school on Friday 3rd March.

The competition is centered around Mr. Dodd's newest book, which he is currently working on titled 'Ultra Girl'. The story is about ten-year-old Stacey Robinson, who does not have the happiest home or school life. Stacey's life changes dramatically when she discovers that she is beginning to develop superpowers. She does not want these powers at first, but finds that she must accept them in order to keep everyone she cares about safe.

The task for your child is to name the villain who will appear in the story! This is a very exciting and creative opportunity. The villain has no gender or even species as yet. This information will be decided based on the winning name. If your child has ideas as well as a name, by all means enter those too. These will be carefully considered and possibly used by the author.

The winner will get their name printed inside the new book, in the 'acknowledgments' section. This will include their full name, age, class and school with a 'thank you'. The winner will then receive a special edition, signed, hardback copy of the book – before the official release date.

Three runners up will each receive a Waterstones gift voucher, courtesy of Upbury Press Publishers.

Happy character creating!

Yours Sincerely,

S Guthrie
